A Little Recognition for Someone Who Isn't Asking for It

People are always willing to criticize how other people do things. But try to get us to take over a task we're being critical about and we are quick to excuse ourselves to do more important things.

But not Daryl Shumway. Mr. Shumway is the man who is placing the stones in the walk in front of the Heber City Municipal building. A contractor and city employees helped by removing the previous walk and doing some of the preparation work.

But Mr. Shumway directed the preparations and is personally placing each stone in the walk, one by one, free of charge. He volunteered for the job because he wanted to be sure it would be done right.

It's not as though he doesn't have other things to do, just like the rest of us. He has a business to run and is an avid fisherman who would probably rather be fishing.

But, according to Shauna Brereton, city deputy recorder, "He worked all day, Labor Day. He's here in the mornings when I get here and he's here at night until dark...He's been here for hours and hours."

No crowds gather to applaud Mr. Shumway as he quietly toils at what can only be a labor of love. Not many people know he's even doing it. So we thought we'd let you know.

Thank you, Daryl Shumway.

Daryl Shumway

As a member of the Lions Club International Board, Shumway will help govern the affairs of the world's largest service club organization, with nearly 1.4 million members in 170 countries. His responsibilities include reviewing Lion humanitarian projects, such as the establishment of SightFirst, a global blindness prevention effort.

Director Shumway is a past president of the Heber City Lions Club and has served as a district governor, council chairman, chairman of the Utah Lions Foundation and in numerous capacities on the district level.

Director Shumway has received the 100 percent District Governors Award, the Grand Master Kay, five Extension Awards and the Melvin Jones Fellowship.

Active in his community, he is a member of the Governor's Council on Tourism, Chaplain of the Sons of Utah Pioneers and convention chairman for the chamber of commerce.

He has also served as a county judge for eight years and as a city judge for nine years. Twice named Citizen of the Year, he is a recipient of the Community Service Award.
